- An inexpensive Cricket suitable for day-to-day feeding
- Store extremely well in pre-pack tubs.
- Long shelf life

Helpful Tip
Most reptiles and amphibia need live Crickets but they can be fed to birds in an inanimate state after freezing. Simply place an unopened pack of Crickets in the freezer for a couple of hours; take out only as many as are needed for each feed and thaw at room temperature until moist before offering to birds.

Massive reductions in bulk Brown Cricket prices - packs of 1,000 adult, large or medium size.

Mealworms (20-25mm)

are the larvae of the Tenebrio molitor beetle. Their diet is vegetarian which means they are safe to feed to animals and birds without passing on the potentially fatal diseases which may be present in offal-fed larvae such as maggots. They are a clean odourless and relatively inexpensive livefood, rich in protein and easy to store. Popular as livefood for many species of aviary and garden birds.

Mini Mealworms (13-18mm)

are carefully graded over mesh sieves to ensure a consistent size is always sold. They are actually part-grown Mealworms, ideal for feeding to small insectivorous aviary birds or wild birds. Especially suitable for nestlings.

Giant Mealworms (25-40mm)

using special (and very confidential) technology which prevents pupation, regular size Mealworms are fed for an extra 6-8 weeks to develop into Giant Mealworms. Ideal for feeding to larger lizards or birds. An excellent fishing bait for eels.

Super Giant Mealworms (40-50mm)

are a clean protein rich livefood and are extremely easy to store for long periods. Popular as livefood for larger species of birds and lizards. Regarded by professional breeders as the perfect livefood for Bearded Dragons.

Locusts

Schistocerca gregaria

Waxworms

Galleria mellonella

Locusts

Available in 6 sizes (photos are actual size) are strictly vegetarian. They eat fresh insecticide-free grass or cabbage and Pro grub. Locusts are popular food for all sizes of lizards. Slightly slower moving than Crickets, they are easier for lizards to catch and eat. If a lizard keeper should over-feed there is no danger of Locusts biting the lizards back. Locusts are particularly good for feeding indoors as any escapees will find it impossible to survive for long.

- Size 1 - Sm/Med 8-12mm
- Size 2 - Medium 12-20mm
- Size 3 - Medium/Large 20-28mm
- Size 4 - Large 28-35mm
- Size 5 - XLarge 35-45mm

Frozen Foods

Please note

- There will be a surcharge of £2 automatically added to every order of frozen food for the provision of dry ice. Should any customer decide not to pay for dry ice, orders will still be despatched but strictly at the customers own risk.
  - Dry ice may have turned to invisible carbon dioxide gas by the time you unpack your parcel. However, if there is any residual dry ice present when you unpack your container do not touch it! Dry ice will burn your skin on contact.
  - We reserve the right to suspend shipments of frozen products during extreme weather conditions.
  - Frozen products are sold by weight not size and may be a variety of colours.
  - To help ensure arrival in prime condition we cannot ship orders weighing less than 650g.
- No discounts on frozen foods.

★ We do not charge extra for polystyrene boxes.

★ Helpful Tip
Don't provide prey animals which are wider in girth than the snake you are feeding them to.

★ Helpful Tip
The use of long tweezers is recommended when feeding snakes not only to avoid being bitten but also because this keeps human scent off the prey items.

★ Helpful Tip
Always defrost frozen food slowly. Place in a refrigerator overnight. Never defrost using hot water or a microwave.

★ Remember - Courier and Special Delivery shipments need to be signed for!

Despatch

- Our despatch department aims to ship orders received before noon Monday to Thursday on the same day.
- Over 94.5% of those orders are received by customers the following day (Royal Mail published figures Feb 07).
- Orders received after 12 noon are despatched the following day. An order received on Monday morning will 9 times out of 10 arrive with you on Tuesday.

- We pride ourselves on this achievement and take all necessary steps to maintain our extremely high standard of customer care.
- Our Live Arrival Guarantee means that if your order arrives and the insects are dead, we will replace them as soon as possible without charge.
